This journey is a first for her - writing poetry. This book arose while reading Eckhart Tolle's, A New Earth, and is a poetic way of expressing those awakening concepts. Tending to forget things after she reads them (even in school, after any exams), it appears that there was something worth remembering from A New Earth Awakening. Poetry surprisingly started flowing, even though this had not happened before. These lyrics are like a "Coles Notes" study book, condensing and giving practical applications of being present, creating the space for our awakening. Using day to day, moment to moment examples to show us when we may be entangled with ego, and ways to shift awareness from ego to our real self. There are 16 poems in sequential order, taking us through practical applications of witnessing our thoughts, watching for patterns in us, connecting to our aliveness within, and Being Present (see free preview to get a taste). Every time we can recognize ego in us, it creates the space to free ourselves from ego. She is grateful for the clear and simple fashion Eckhart showed us ego. She prays we can disentangle ourselves from our personal and collective ego's, making way for our soul selves to lovingly express freely. She hopes some of this resonates within you as we become co-creators of our new earth. A door is opening to our depths within So let this wonderous journey begin....

"Moskovich (Virtuoso) mystifies with this vivid story of a pair of estranged siblings who immigrated to Milwaukee from the Soviet Union as children in 1991... The dynamic style and psychological depth make this an engaging mind bender." —Publishers Weekly In Yelena Moskovich's spellbinding new novel, A Door Behind A Door, we meet Olga, who immigrates as part of the Soviet diaspora of 1991 to Milwaukee, Wisconsin. There she grows up and meets a girl and falls in love, beginning to believe that she can settle down. But a phone call from a bad man from her past brings to life a haunted childhood in an apartment building in the Soviet Union: an unexplained murder in her block, a supernatural stray dog, and the mystery of her beloved brother Moshe, who lost an eye and later vanished. We get pulled into Olga's past as she puzzles her way through an underground Midwestern Russian mafia, in pursuit of a string of mathematical stabbings. "Yelena Moskovich returns with her latest work, A Door Behind a Door, bearing many of the hallmarks — the post-Soviet diaspora, the mesmeric blending of past and present, desire and violence — of her previous novels, Virtuoso and The Natashas. This time we are in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where the protagonist Olga receives a phone call opening up a Pandora's box of haunting memories and unsolved puzzles from her Soviet past." —Matt Janney, The Calvert Journal, "Books to look forward to in 2021"

Afghanistan, a memoir by humanitarian Gideon Crane that has become a bible for American engagement in the country, she is inspired. Galvanized by Crane's experience, Parveen travels to a remote village in the land of her birth to join the work of his charitable foundation. When she arrives, however, Crane's maternity clinic, while grandly equipped, is mostly unstaffed. The villagers do not exhibit the gratitude she expected to receive. And Crane's memoir appears to be littered with mistakes, or outright fabrications. As the reasons for Parveen's pilgrimage crumble beneath her, the U.S. military, also drawn by Crane's book, turns up to pave the solde road to the village, bringing the war in their wake. When a fatal ambush occurs, Parveen must decide whether her loyalties lie with the villagers or the soldiers -- and she must determine her own relationship to the truth. Amy Waldman, who reported from Afghanistan for the New York Times after 9/11, has created a taut, propulsive novel about power, perspective, and idealism, brushing aside the dust of America's longest-standing war to reveal the complicated truths beneath. A Door in the Earth is the rarest of books, one that helps us understand living history through poignant characters and unforgettable storytelling.
