Other Byzantine siege weapons included the same Medieval siege equipment for sieging castle walls such as the trebuchet or mangonel, a tall and heavy-supported catapult throwing large rocks or flamed hay balls to damage or burn walls. Other of their siege weapons than catapults were battering rams and siege towers which were useful to make soldiers invade the walls.

When it came to non-gunpowder machine development, the medieval period was one of the most inventive in military history. During this era, the pre-existing military-technological traditions from the ancient worlds were brought together. Three civilisations were primarily responsible for this evolution: the Late-Roman or Byzantine Empire, the Islamic World, and latterly the Mongol 'World ...
