"24 Heliotype illustrations from engravings after paintings and details. The reproductions in this edition have been made by the Heliotype process and the prints are about one-third the size of the original engravings. This example, one of many produced at this time by Osgood, shows the company's interest in disseminating art reproductions on a large scale. This folio volume is typical of the Gray Collection work as well as the numerous other art volumes to have come out of the Heliotype shop in the 70's."--Hanson collection catalog, p. 51.

This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1885 edition. Excerpt: ... I. Adoration of the Magi, The. N. Poussin Dimensions, 18J x 13. This and the portrait of Joan of Aragon, No. 12, are the only plates in the Musee Royal or Musee Francais on which Raphael Morghen worked. "The original, No. 29 in the Dulwich Gallery, is a repetition, or more probably an ancient copy, of No. 423 in the Louvre, which latter is larger (5 ft. 4 in. high by 5 ft. 8, in. wide). The original was painted by Poussin in 1653 for M. de Mauroy. Mrs. Jameson states that the picture in the Dulwich Gallery is probably the one sold in Sir Joshua Reynolds's collection in 1795."--Lou1s Fagan. Raphael Morghen's name does not occur on this plate, and he probably had little to do with its engraving. In the left foreground St. Joseph behind the Virgin, who holds the nude figure of the Child on her lap. Kneeling before these are the three Magi, behind whom, in the right foreground, are five of their attendants. A standing figure beyond the Magi holds a finger of the right hand to his lips. In the middle ground a temple, in the course of construction, with two pillars, The background a landscape, with a group of attendants, camels, and horses on the right. For a pleasing and exhaustive treatment of the subject of the original, see Mrs. Jameson, "Legends of the Madonna," London, 1852, pp. 227 et seq. I. Before all letters.
